"Don't You Forget About Me" by Mhairi McFarlane

Follows the unfortunate, aimless Georgina as she deals with her father's death, a bad boyfriend and a worse job — until her first love unexpectedly walks back into her life.

"Get a Life, Chloe Brown" by Talia Hibbert

A romance that tackles tough problems like insecurity and chronic pain while still delivering a laugh-out-loud love story full of revelations about human nature.

"Big Fish" by Daniel Wallace

Contains the stories of Edward Bloom's life as told by his son, William. As his father lay slowly dying, William seeks to reconcile the god-like man of the extraordinary stories with the often-absent and withdrawn father he has known all his life.

"America's First Daughter" by Stephanie Dray and Laura Kamoie

It tells the story of Patsy Jefferson, the eldest daughter of Thomas Jefferson and a pretty important woman in the early days of our country. After Patsy's mother dies, she becomes an influential figure in Jefferson's life; and her devotion to her father is, for the most part, admirable.

"This Could Change Everything" by Jill Mansell

An email written in jest that only her best friend was supposed to see was the catalyst for Essie's life to change completely. When it gets accidentally sent to her entire address book, she does her best to try to make amends with her boyfriend, and his mother—her boss.

"The Hating Game" by Sally Thorne

Lucy and Josh are Executive Assistants to the co-CEOs, and not only do the CEOs hate each other, but so do Lucy and Josh. ... However, as the story unfolds through a series of delightful events, we discover that maybe they don't hate each other after all.

"The Watchmaker's Daughter" by CJ Archer

India Steele is desperate. Her father is dead, her fiancé took her inheritance, and no one will employ her, despite years working for her watchmaker father. Alone, poor, and at the end of her tether, India takes employment with the only person who'll accept her – an enigmatic and mysterious man from America.

"The Night Tiger" by Yangsze Choo

Set against the intriguing backdrop of 1930s Malaya. In it, Yangsze Choo weaves together ancient Malayan superstitions and traditions to tell a story of missing fingers, man-eating tigers, dancehall girls, twins and even a train to the land of the dead.

"The Book Woman of Troublesome Creek" by Kim Michele Richardson

In 1936, tucked deep into the woods of Troublesome Creek, KY, lives blue-skinned 19-year-old Cussy Carter, the last living female of the rare Blue People ancestry. The lonely young Appalachian woman joins the historical Pack Horse Library Project of Kentucky and becomes a librarian.
